

Brief Intro to CQC

China Quality Certification Centre (CQC) is a professional certification institution approved by the General Administration of Quality Supervision, Inspection and Quarantine (AQSIQ), accredited by the Certification & Accreditation Administration of the People's Republic of China (CNCA), and belonging to China Certification & Inspection (Group) Co., Ltd. (CCIC).

In year 1992, CQC became the pioneer of certification in China by auditing according to the standards of International Management System. It issued the first ISO9000 Quality Management System certificate in China. Through its tireless effort of more than twenty years, CQC has developed into a certification body having powerful global influences. It is in the leading position internationally in many aspects that include, but not limited to, business scopes, fields of certificates, technical level of certification professionals, extents of organizational network coverage, number of certificates issued, and speed of its business development. It becomes one of the most professional, authoritative and internationally well known certification body having its own independent research, development and innovation capabilities. Work conducted by CQC is approved by Chinese government. The brand name of CQC is widely accepted both domestically and internationally. Currently, CQC is the biggest accredited certification body in China.

CQC provides complete services in its mature business of the following four areas. They are product certification, management system certification, technical, and certification training. Areas covered by its product certification service are safety, energy and water savings, environmental friendly and agricultural products, and etc. Areas covered by its management system certification service include quality, environment, food safety, information safety, occupational health, social responsibility and etc. Technical service covers new projects that include quality elevation, global warming, green design, E-Commerce certification and etc. Certification training service consists of quality, management, metrology and standards as its four main contents. The main focus is to train and spread the advanced quality concept and experiences.

CQC has 11 product certification sub-centers in China and 36 quality management system certification subsidiaries, and 25 business development platforms abroad. It has thousands of professional certification employees. Many of them occupy management positions in international certification organizations or possess international certification credentials. Its research achievements are awarded as national science and technology improvements and other glorious titles. It has reasonable swiftness in reacting to the changing market of business. It is well connected to the global technology developments in the areas of energy resource management, PV certification, climate change services, low carbine evaluation, and etc. It constantly makes high-end service products such as excellent performance training, contracted energy resource management, supplier evaluation, and etc. available to its customers. Certification results are adopted by the government authorities, accepted by the buyers, and approved by the society.

CQC management system certificate is accredited by China National Accreditation Service for Conformity Assessment (CNAS). It is also accredited internationally under the framework of International Accreditation Forum (IAF). As one of the 2 members from China, CQC joined the International Certification Network (IQNet). Therefore, the certificates issued by CQC are honored by international certification bodies. China Certification Centre (CQC) resembles the statue of China Certification to the world and plays an active role in International Organization of Standardization (ISO) on behalf of China. Under its participation, the ISOTC176 and ISOTC207 workgroups have been constantly improving the international standards.
